BUCKFIELD

Masonic Annual Street Fair

The street fair under the auspices of Evening Star Masonic Lodge held at Buckfield village, Friday, attracted about 1,500 people. Over 200 patronized the dinner served in the new hall and hundreds made purchases from the sales tables at Buckfield grange hall, the American Legion hall and at other places where a variety of articles including fruits and vegetables were sold. It is expected the proceeds will exceed $1000.

Some fifty decorated floats with the Turner band made a colorful parade. Public garages of Norway and South Paris had late models of cars in the long line.

Showers interrupted the ball game, and only three innings were played, with Buckfield scoring 1 to the Leviston-Aurora Mason's 0.

Horse-pulling was exciting sport and brought together half a dozen pairs in two classes. George Fog's team hauled the load 247 feet in 2800 and over class. Lester Packard's outfit won in the 2500 and under with a mark of 354 feet. Roy Bradbury's sixteen-year old army horse won the singles, hauling the weight 400 feet or about twice the distance of his nearest competitor.

There were many attractive exhibits assembled in two halls. The grange hall, under the leadership of Mrs. J. A. Hibbs and to a flower-garden display behind a well-kept lawn and fence. Gladioli and asters predominated.

Down the side of the hall were exhibits of antiques: Rev Herbert Wyman's valuable Indian collection; minerals shown by J. A. Hibbs and from the Bennett quarry in Buckfield. There were an apron table, a quaint "old lady of the thousand pockets," and a list of articles from aviators to fancywork and cosmetics, contributed for sale.

At the Legion hall, fruit and vegetables had been brought in for sale, to aid the fund's funds; apples coming from N. Smith, C. K. Dudley, W. H. Conant, the Class orchard and others. Pears, potatoes, pumpkins, all kinds of vegetables found quick customers. Woodland Terrace farm, Mrs. Mabel Wood, proprietor, had a varied exhibit attractively displayed. Buckfield Farmers' Union set out a neat array of seeds and other articles. The Maine Farmers' Grange Exchange had its contribution. "Robert Dunn's" brand of carved toys was unusual. Cans exhibiting included F. R. Conant Co. of Auburn, with finished lumber, in charge of Charles Enman and A. U. Bagley; Irish Bros. with their dices; the Monarch Insurance Co., the Dillingwood Novelty Co., and Buckfield Brush Co.; C. E. Withington & Sons, brushes and the like.

SUMNER-LABRADOR POND

Recent guests at Pleasant View Farms were E. Hartnett and Mrs. Hartnett, Brookline, N. Y.; Mrs. Keegan and son, Vincent Keegan and Mr. Gallicie of Brookline, N. Y.; Miss Florence Gunyan, Belgrade, L. I.; Harry F. E. and Mrs. A. Jenkins, Methuen, Mass.; Mrs. Dunbar, Methuen, Mass.; Harry Love, Yonkers, N. Y.; Mary Burke, Portland, Me. and Mrs. F. P. Rollins, Wollaston, Mass.; W. P. Lord, South Weymouth, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Wallis, Wollaston, Mass.; J. Adlington Lake, Malden, Mass.

At Pleasant View Farms, Labor Day was signaled by a trip to "Balanced Rock" in which Leland J. Andrews took his guests for an all night excursion and sunrise party, somewhat down from the summit, in a grove of pines, the men of the party put up a lean-to which sheltered the sixteen back to nature "campers," over a rousing fire, chicken, sweet corn, in the shack, "mickies" and other fare disappeared as quick as the falling "foster" marshmallows accompanied by ghost stories by the young folks and whilst by lantern light for the older campers whiled away an evening long to be remembered. At four-thirty the downy springs of nature's couch were quitted in favor of a perch on the great rock giving a wide sweep of rugged country side under the half lights of coming dawn. The sun worshippers greeted a perfect performance by "Old Sol," then descended to ham, flapjacks and fragrant coffee. The unusual feature was the amazing hill-climbing by the Andrews' Reo "Speed Wagon" which carried the party and the equipment up through two fields above the Moses Young farm and only fetched up at the boundary rocks not many rods below the camping site. A real thrill was provided by "Rufus" the five years old collie dog at the Farms, at Sumner's faint call from the opposite mountain side, Rufus responded like a streak and was timed six minutes to the summit from the farm yard. Camp was broken at 6.30 when all piled into the faithful Reo, and were soon plunging homeward. The party consisted of Mrs. Lena Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kratzer of New York, Miss Florence Gunyan of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Love of New York, Misses Nella and Georgia Dyer, George Gillette of N. Y., Ed. Hartnett of N. Y., Thos. Dyer, Vincent Keegan, N. Y., Leland J. Andrews, Julian Andrews, Elizabeth and Dorothy Love, N. Y.

Nella Dyer is attending Canton High School and is stopping at the present at H. R. Robinson's in Paris and going back and forth with Andrew and Elaine Robinson in their automobile.

Lewis Bisbee, who suffered a paralytic shock a few weeks ago is slowly recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cole were given a surprise shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Redding on the evening of the 19th. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. George Redding and Harlan Redding, John Redding, Mrs. Gorgia Fish and son, Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Andrews, the Misses Lula and Violet Cole, Edmund and Aubrey Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bisbee and Norma Bisbee, Norman Bisbee, Edith and Ida and Mrs. Florence Abbott and Mrs. Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Farrer, Arthur Childs and Helen Bonner, Mr. and Mrs. Madison Ford, Norman, Reginald and Hazel Ford. Two girl friends and school mates of the bride beside the Redding family, Percy, Alice, Sadie, and Vernon, and the bride and groom.

The evening was spent in merry making games and cards. Music by Norman and Ida Bisbee and songs by the party. The bride and groom were followed to the dining room which was very prettily decorated for the occasion where the wedding bell which hung over the table whilst the bride and groom were seated, held the tokens of their many friends, which consisted of linen, silver, glass, earthen dishes, aluminum ware, pictures, pillow slips, wool blankets, towels, not to mention the bride's and groom's gifts, wash cloths and towels for their needs and comforts. Ice cream and cake were served by the hostess and a very pleasant evening enjoyed by all.

GREENWOOD CENTER

Mrs. D. R. Cole visited relatives in Portland, a few days last week.

Mrs. R. L. Martin, who has been caring for her daughter, Mrs. E. A. Farr, at West Poland has returned home.

Frank Reid and Nicholas Harthaus of Mechanic Falls, called on friends in this vicinity Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Euychel of Shelburne, N. H., were at their camp at Twitchell Lake, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Cole visited with Mr. and Mrs. Carrick Doughty, at West Paris, recently.

Horace Cushman of Shelburne, N. H., is at camp Shady-Acre.

SUMNER

Mrs. Charles Tuttle very recently received a letter from her sister, Lydia J. Willey, who lives in Roscoe, California. The letter was two days coming to New York by the Lindburgh air mail route. This letter was a ten-cent stamp with a perfect picture of the Lindburgh plane upon it, and as far as we know this is the first mail coming through the East Sumner office by air line or having a Lindburgh stamp thereon.

Charles Tuttle has just finished cutting his annual supply of stove wood from his wood lot in the green woods. The lot is two and one half miles from Mr. Tuttle's house and he walked to and from the lot and cut six cords of four foot wood in four days, and the feature of this item is that Mr. Tuttle is seventy-one years of age. Let us hear from some more of these youngsters.

Linn Farrar has sold Jack for one hundred dollars. Now Jack is not a fast road horse, a two-year-old registered herd bull, nor a 26 Ford car as the price might indicate, for we know well that figure was buy either at this time. Now the above mentioned Jack is or was one of the pick of Linn's pack of fox hounds that he recently sold to a Mr. Lohy of Lowell, and just now, Linn, as well as some of his neighbors, are thinking that he sold the dog for a too small piece of money, but Linn is a good sport and when he puts a price on any of his property, and one accepts the article at that price, he has bought something of Mr. Farrar.

Friday, the 29th, Mrs. Emerson Bartlett went to and from Rumford with Jerry Redding, Doris Bartlett, and the Buckfield Fair with Mrs. Linn Cole, and Jerry Bartlett worked for Donald Varney getting ready for his silo.

Sunday callers at Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Bartlett's were: Hod Farrar, a housekeeper, Mrs. Linn Cole, also Charles Tuttle; several just stopped to buy squashes.

Miss Edna Ray and Mr. Macomber, who were visiting Miss Ray's sister, Mrs. Emerson Bartlett, for a week, started upon their way home in Boston, Mass., Thursday, the 15th, while here they gave the family many good rides in their eight-cylinder car. One ride in particular was out to Farmington village and from there to Farmington Falls, while upon our way we saw hundreds of acres of sweet corn that was at that date, Sept. 10th, unharmed by frost, though that night there was a heavy frost that must have done damage in many places. Field after field of heavy English hay was standing at that time, but what rich farm lands with magnificent sets of buildings, and costly herds of cattle and sheep could be seen when riding through that section. Upon our return trip we called upon Doctor Rich at Canton Point, and had the pleasure of looking over one of the best herds of Holstein cows in Maine. Doc and his assistants were busily engaged in milking the herd when we drove in, nevertheless we were met with a welcome hand and Doc showed us around his mammoth barn with two hundred tons of hay in its loft with twenty-five acres of sweet corn fodder yet to be put into the silos, back to the herd 35 of them every one registered Holsteins," says Doc, "and all in the pink of condition and some of which are milking more than twenty-five quarts of milk per day." Upon the opposite side of the main floor were eight or ten high class horses most of which are used to carry on the farm work, and last but not least Doc called our attention to his little granddaughter's calico pony which certainly was a rare specimen. After exclaiming over the pony we saw a busy part of the day, we had a rich good night and thanked him for the courtesy shown us upon our call. He also requested the family to call again. We got into the big car and were soon moving towards home while this visit will long linger in our memory.

Friday the 15th, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Bartlett and daughters, Grace and Gertrude went to the Norway fair with Mr. Macomber and Miss Ray. Mr. Macomber carried Linn and Jerry Bartlett to the fair the 14th.

Lovell Chandler hauled potatoes to Rumford; went with two loads, Monday the 19th.

Potatoes are a pretty poor crop in this section, rusting bad in many fields and rotting bad in others.

Charles Tuttle went to Rumford, Monday morning, September 19, with Jimmie Gammon.

Joseph Bosse has a small crew of his men saving pulp on the Penley lot, though Mr. Bosse is still stopping with a crew at the Penley lot at North Paris. Sunday morning at eight o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Burr of Bellingham, Mass., drove into Emerson Bartlett's yard after a drive of two hundred and seventeen miles started the night before. They started back at ten the same morning, taking Irvin Bartlett with them, where Irvin is to work this winter.

EAST SUMNER

The players of Union Grange are rehearsing the drama "The Road to the City" for the evening following the Grange Fair, October 6.

A reception was given Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cole at the Grange Hall, Sunday evening, Sept. 19th. In the receiving line were the bride and groom, the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Redding, the groom's father, Edmund E. Cole, and sister, Lula Cole; Mrs. Roger Eastman and Miss Augusta Eastman. A pleasing entertainment of music, readings, etc. The bride and groom were presented with a handsome present in money contributed by their many friends.

E. R. H. Stetson is making over the annex to his stand into a very pretty tent. It will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Chester J. Cole.

REDDING AND SHAGG POND

Mrs. John Andrews visited her brother, Richard Palmer at Litchfield the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Andrews from Sumner and Mrs. Julia Packard from Buckfield, were the guests of their sister, Mrs. Wallace Andrews, recently.

Mrs. Dora Farnum and Archie Farnum were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Welford Leaphart at East Sumner last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Ames from South Paris were Sunday visitors at Wallace Andrews'.

A reception was given Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cole at P. V. Redding's, Tuesday evening, Sept. 20. A large number was present. Mr. and Mrs. Cole received many beautiful presents. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by playing games, music, and refreshments of ice cream and cake.

Kenneth Cole worked at E. R. H. Stetson's store at East Sumner last week.

WEST GREENWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. George Cole and Mr. and Mrs. Hastings were in town Sunday calling on friends.

Mrs. Sullivan and Mr. Mullin of Berlin, N. H., were recent callers at John Deegan's.

Mr. McAllister of Lynchville, was in town the first of the week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Gammon were recent Sunday guests at John Deegan's.

John Gill and daughter, Abbie, and Mr. Hildebrand were in town, Sunday.

Mr. Brown of Waterville was in town one day last week.

Roe Cummings of Albany is working for John Deegan.

Mr. and Mrs. Leighton of Gilead were recent callers at Paul O'Groteau's. Mr. and Mrs. Crockett are planning to move to Gilead, soon.

Welchville Community Fair

Oxford Grange Community Fair held at Welchville Saturday was a success in every department. Ideal weather brought out several hundred people who assembled around the grange hall where the exhibits were placed, in and around the building and fairs pitched their tents.

There wasn't much doing within the hall until noon when the ladies of Oxford Grange served dinner in the lower hall. A Foster Jackson, proprietor Mrs. Other, chairman of a large group of helpers.

There were nice exhibits of vegetables, fruits and canned goods arranged in groups, showing what is accomplished on each farm. The exhibitors were Riverside Farm, J. W. Hunting, proprietor. This was a fine exhibit. There were some very large stalks of corn and of sunflowers. Likewise these were some very small cucumbers and other vegetables in proportion.

Mrs. Charlotte Hunting had a fine display of canned goods. J. P. Bryant also had a fine display of Fairview Farm. Mrs. George Tyler, first, and other exhibitors were R. M. Tyner, Charles Brooks and O. H. Brett.

The judges made the award for first place in general collection to Mr. Hunting; second to J. A. Bryant; third, A. A. Foster Jackson; fourth, R. M. Tyner; fifth, Charles Brooks. Hunting got twelve firsts and six seconds on a display which included about everything raised on a farm. Bryant got seven firsts and one second. Jackson got eleven firsts and six seconds.

Tyner had nine firsts and two seconds. Brooks was awarded six firsts and two seconds. Brett got first on turnips, first on cabbages, first on cauliflower, first on Pratt of Oxford and Dana Hamlin of Otisfield. The Busy Bee 4-H club of Oxford had a small display that was attractive.

Mrs. A. N. Record of Oxford had a display of beautiful gladioli and Ray P. Hall had a very large display of antiques that included about everything of utility and beauty of the long ago.

The fancy work was well displayed and Mrs. Gardiner Edwards first centerpiece, judges gave first to Mrs. Lena Welch; second, Miss Annie Fuller; third, Mrs. Hazel Marshall. Crocheted bedspread, Frost, though that night there was a heavy frost that must have done damage in many places. Field after field of heavy English hay was standing at that time, but what rich farm lands with magnificent sets of buildings, and costly herds of cattle and sheep could be seen when riding through that section. As We Grow Older

Proper Kidney Action Is More Than Ever Important.

As we grow older, there is a apt to be a gradual slowing up of bodily functions. The kidneys are the blood filters. If their action becomes sluggish they do not remove the poisons which build up in the blood. This tends to make one tired and aching, with often nagging backache, drowsy, headaches and dizziness. A common symptom of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning urination. Every one who has experienced the effects of kidney trouble will recommend Doan's Pills. This tested diuretic is endorsed the country over. Ask your neighbor!

An Open Letter to the Editor

From the President of General Motors

LAST SPRING I wrote you that my belief in the country newspaper had led us in General Motors to decide to advertise our products together in the small-city press of the country.

The returns from the series of the messages recently published have justified that faith; and we shall continue to advertise in your community through your newspaper this fall.

It occurs to me, however, that some of your readers may be asking: "What is General Motors?" and "Why is General Motors?" There are fair questions and I should like to answer them as frankly as I can.

General Motors was organized some years ago on the theory that a group of large companies, working together, could render a better service than they could separately. In this we simply applied to industry a principle that is as old as civilization as regards the human family and human progress.

Original members of the General Motors family were Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Oakland and Oldsmobile, together with the Delco-Light Company and other well-known companies manufacturing automotive equipment. By joining together their resources, we were able to establish great Research Laboratories, a 1245-acre Proving Ground and the GMAC Plan of credit purchase; to effect vast economies in purchase and manufacture and distribution; to assure and maintain the quality of every product in the General Motors family.

Has the General Motors family principle proved itself in practice?

The best answer, I think, is to compare the Chevrolet, Buick, Cadillac, Oldsmobile and Oakland of today with the models of five or ten years ago.

Then add Pontiac, a General Motors creation. Add LaSalle, another General Motors creation. And then consider how General Motors has developed these cars into a complete line, within which any family may find a suitable quality car at the price it plans to pay: "A Car for Every Purse and Purpose."

Another example is Frigidaire, the electric refrigerator. General Motors had the resources to spend millions to develop a satisfactory refrigerator, and then to apply to its manufacture the same processes which have increased the utility and lowered the cost of the automobile.

We believe that this record justifies General Motors as an economic institution. Its products are quality products, first of all. Their prices represent the economies of united effort passed on to the purchaser. In the last year one in each three automobiles chosen by the public has been a General Motors car. The service of Delco-Light electric plants has extended to more than a quarter million homes, while Frigidaire has become the world's largest selling convenience of its kind.

We believe also that the values now offered in the current General Motors products (which are listed below) prove anew that "many minds are better than one" and that a family of companies, working together, can produce results which are decidedly in the public interest and of increasing benefit to the individual family.

Very truly yours,

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., President

Hiking in New England

Boston Writer Shrewdly Observes Effect of the Passing Years and Tries to Forecast Changes in the Future

"The Nomad" in Boston Transcript. A hike over the country roads of northern New England is in one sense a joyous thing. It allows great pleasure to the hiker, if he keeps off the State roads. It gives him a chance not only to see some of the most beautiful spots in the world, but to see the most beautiful spots in the world, the sight of glorious hills and sweeping landscapes, but to meet sweet and friendly people who have all the grace of the old New England kindness and courtesy. It is a light-hearted business, this walking the open New England road.

But there is a sad side to the experience. It comes from seeing the deserted farmhouses, the crumbling homes, the wasted fields, the uninhabited hamlets, the deserted crossroads churches, and the other signs of rural decline. Either in Vermont, New Hampshire or Maine, the abandoned farm is the characteristic thing. Leave the farm buildings uncared for even for one year and they show it. Grass grows over the doorstep. The blinds begin to hang by one corner. Lonesome broods over the place. By and by the panes of window glass disappear and the roof sags. Eventually the house or the barn falls in a mass of ragged ruin. Fire takes the building at last, and there is nothing left of the old homestead but a cellar-hole fringed with blue bushes and cuminous roses.

The enormous economic loss. The change represents an enormous economic loss. The other day the Nomad read in the Concord, N. H., Monitor an account of a particular farm place that the editor of the paper knew. He says of it that "a pasture which had kept a medium sized herd of cows sufficiently supplied with food until some fifteen years ago was now growing up to stubble and brush, already seemingly beyond recall. A grist mill, supplied with power from a dam on the brook, had been razed. The dam still existed, but the once attractive pond was an eyecore, for the desire for a quick profit had led to the clearing of a woodlot on its shores, a clearing so thorough that only stumps were left, with no new growth coming along to fill the land. Thus land which had been good pasture, and was possible tillage, was beyond redemption and land which fittingly should be raising trees had been converted into a stump-ridden swamp."

And it is literally true that there are thousands of such places in northern New England, though about them there is generally this relieving condition—that the woods come back to the deserted fields and pastures, and the pine forest gradually resumes possession of what man can or will no longer make use of.

Some Scenes of Prosperity. Yet here and there, thank the Lord, there is a thrifty farm. Now and then some lively agricultural citizen is making a go of it. Viewing the broad landscape from the top of this high hill in Maine, the Nomad looks down on three farms that are kept right up to the mark. Square fields of corn and potatoes on the long slope; a big garden patch, evidently occupied with beans and other useful vegetables; and a moving machine, drawn by a pair of horses is rattling along the edges of an immense hay-field, where the grass looks as if it were high and lush, while in the pasture that leads down to the shore of the pretty lake cattle and colts are contentedly grazing. The farm buildings look neat and well kept.

A mile or so away, another prosperous-looking farm. Whether or not these men are really making it pay, it is evident that they are at least getting a living. But in between—wildness and neglect and the bushes coming in.

Some special condition, no doubt, enables some of the farmers to keep going with an appearance of prosperity—unusual intelligence or enterprise, or the possession of some family advantage in the way of labor, or the patience and economy transferred from European peasant conditions.

Dr. Hale used to tell how, in passing a very prosperous looking farm in New Hampshire, he asked his driver, a local farmer, the reason for the superior appearance of this man's place. "Huh!" growled the driver, "he's got six boys!" Nobody has six boys any longer on a New England farm, but some of our Polish or Jewish friends and apprentices come pretty near it.

In spite of desertion and decline, the successful New England farm does still exist. But it is the exception.

The Wayside Burying Grounds. Walking along the northern New England roads, the Nomad is easily beguiled into the old-fashioned burying-grounds by the wayside and there, too, the record of agricultural decline is sadly written. In many of them appear the granite memorials of natives of the neighborhood who have gone away in their youth, and thrive, and have chosen to be brought home to the old place and buried with their fathers. With what a strange look of incongruity these finer and very modern memorials stand up among the gray old stones of the rude forefathers.

It is a sad thing to say, but most of the wayside cemeteries of northern New England are shockingly neglected. Bushes and weeds grow among the stones, and the stones are falling. "Well," says the neighbor, in explanation, "all their folks are gone—no body to care about 'em any longer." At all events, about 'em any longer. In the old days, in July the clannish roses riot over the old graves—and sometimes there are flowers more beautiful than those.

Near Buckfield, Me., the Nomad found a burying ground which is almost entirely overgrown with the lowliest white roses that ever were seen. Their fragrance fills the air. Here the fathers sleep under a canopy of perfect beauty.

Future of the Abandoned Farms. What shall be done with the abandoned farms of New England? Nature has her answer—over them the forest shall resume its sway. Swiftly it returns. The hay-field that is no longer moved affords cover for the little pine, which come up through tangled grass singly, here and there, or in triumphant clusters. In a few years they are a compact wood. Or there, where the fathers sleep under a canopy of perfect beauty.

Shake-up in Game Department

Wardens and Deputies in Oxford and Western Franklin Counties Hit

Wardens and deputies in Oxford and Western Franklin counties employed in the State Fish and Game department have been hit with a shake-up, called reorganization, that covers the state. Among those in this section to receive notice are Erland C. Torrey, of Dixfield, chief warden, and deputies Merle E. Witham, of Dixfield, Ivan Stove, of Rumford, Edward Stuart of Dover, Alpheus Keene of Oxford, Roy Leenan of Denmark, and others.

The letter sent to the Oxford County wardens was as follows: "Owing to a reorganization in the warden force, it becomes necessary to place your name on the list of without pay wardens as of date of Sept. 26, 1927. After that date you perform no duties at the expense of this department without specific authorization of the zone supervisor or the undersigned. R. F. Maxey, Ass. Com."

Mr. Torrey, the chief warden coming under the new edict is a former sheriff of Oxford County, and he has served as warden for several years, while the deputies under him have been in the service nearly as long as he has.

While the commissions of the wardens have not been taken away, they assert that they have been deprived of their livelihood, so there is little difference between holding the commissions and being without them.

So far as the Oxford County men know, there have been no complaints whatever about their work, but they consider they are simply being shelved that others may take their places under the reorganization plan.

The fear has been expressed in some sections of the county, though the wardens have said nothing that would change to new men and the possible confusion arising therefrom, poachers may take advantage of the situation.

Most of the wardens who have been notified that they are off the paid list are young or middle aged men.

Announcing a new issue

Central Maine Power Company Preferred Stock

$6 Dividend Series

$100 Par Value

Central Maine Power Company has discontinued the sale of its 7 per cent. Preferred Stock and announces a new issue preferred stock to finance a portion of the Company's growth. The new Preferred stock $6 Dividend Series has the same preferences and priorities as the 7 per cent. Preferred stock, now held by over 13,000 Maine people, except as to name, yield and call price.

Dividends payable quarterly on January 1, April 1, July 1 and October 1. Has equal preference with the 6% and 7% preferred as to assets and dividends. Has voting power should dividends be in arrears in excess of $3, until such dividends are paid up. Callable on 30 days' notice at $100.00 plus $7.50 premium or at $107.50 a share. The stock is a legal investment for Maine savings banks and is exempt from direct taxation in Maine and from the normal Federal income tax.

BUSINESS—Central Maine Power Company system owns 22 hydroelectric and 2 steam plants, supplies electric energy to 204 cities, towns and communities with an estimated population of 280,000 and more than 400 industrial establishments in 12 of the 16 counties in Maine. The strength of the Company's position, in a section widely known for its manufacturing industries, is established by its ownership of 79,522 h. p. of developed water power and its control of over 100,000 h. p. of undeveloped hydroelectric sites. The hydroelectric plants are supplemented by 2 steam reserve stations of 18,000 h. p. The entire system is interconnected by 753 miles of transmission lines. Gas service is supplied to 9 cities and towns and the Company has a small electric railway business. Seven cities and towns are served power at wholesale, with an added population of 75,000.

DIVIDENDS—For 22 years this Company has proved its ability to pay dividends through strikes, panics, inflation, deflation, war and peace.

MANAGEMENT—Central Maine Power Company will continue under the same efficient leadership which has characterized its management from the start.

MAINTENANCE—The Company's property has been especially well maintained. The Company expends or appropriates annually for maintenance, repairs, renewals and replacements an amount not less than the sum of 15 per cent of the gross operating revenue derived from electric light, power and gas business and 25 per cent of the gross railway business. These figures are considerably larger than are generally found in companies of this nature.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE—Proceeds from the present issue of 6000 shares will be used to finance new extensions and to take care of the normal growth of the Company.

Price $96 and interest, to yield 6.25 per cent
